

Step Together

working together to give people with epilepsy and a learning disability the best care

More people who have a learning disability and/or autism have Epilepsy than other people

Epilepsy can be hard for the person and the people who support them

Lots of medicines and health tests are needed to keep people well

Everyone should get the best treatment they can

Lots of health services and social care services can be needed to help people keep well and happy

They should all should work together to give the best service for the person

This information tells people the services they should get to keep them well